

REALITY-BASED LEADERSHIP

Leading in Uncertainty and Crisis

Many of us are focused on how to “get through” the current pandemic so we can get back to business as usual. For Reality-Based leaders, the work at hand is about greatness - how to not only survive the daily in these times but to ensure that your team comes through this crisis better for it, evolved by it, and changed from it.

This session will outline the role of a leader in profound uncertainty, capturing hearts and minds, keeping teams and individuals focused on the work at hand, all the while ensuring that the forces that will evolve your team and team members is not curtailed.

Cy will interrupt your current thinking and provide tips and techniques to make sure that your team is impacted - but not traumatized - by recent events and that you are leveraging current times to build resilience in your teams and to recreate the way you work in the future.
